

The Cat's Meow By Mew and Purr

Our worthy colleague, the Moral-ist, stated in his explosive letter to the editor that dissipation reached unheard of heights during the recent Junior Prom. With this opinion Mew and Purr are heartily in accord. In fact, so great were the extremes reached, that an extremely well-known journalist on the campus walked up to a perfectly innocent professor, slapped him vigorously on the back, saying, joyfully, "Mac, you old reprobate, come over and join us in a doughnut." Of course, he tried to explain feebly later, that he mistook the professor for a student, but nevertheless, Mew and Purr believe implicitly in the opinions of Miss Moral-ist.

There was a young fellow named Pete,
Who certainly did like to eat
But at a banquet one night
How sad was his plight
He wasn't served any meat.

He called for the waiter and cried
He sobbed, and pleaded and sighed
But it did him no good
For there was no more food
For to fill up his ample inside.

A certain member of the Daily staff, masquerading occasionally under the pseudonym of "Mike", has been seen lately a good deal lately with a sleek, luscious brunette, named Fifi. Will this become one of the campus' hottest romances—or is it only a flitting attachment. We wonder. We will watch your future progress, Mike, with considerable interest.

Howls of anguish were
All over the land
When everyone heard
That liquor is banned.
Sad!

There is a certain professor of chemistry on this campus, (we mention no names), who is notorious for prolonging his lectures well beyond the bell. One day, so the story goes, just as the school bell was tolling the five to, in ambled with sublime savoir-faire a student, who casually proceeded to open his notebook and jot down notes. The professor just went on and on, and never noticed.

News flash: Friday, December 11th, McGill holds its annual Junior Prom.

Wednesday, December 16th, Ottawa rations liquor supply.

Mock Parliament in R.V.C.
The Women's Debating Union is sponsoring a Mock Parliament to be held in the Common-Room of R.V.C. at 8.15 p.m. on Friday. The subject of debate is "The Position of Women in Public Life" and it is hoped that all women students who can will take this opportunity to discuss their responsibilities in community, national and international affairs.

Avukah Society Meeting
The Avukah Society will meet at 527 Sherbrooke St. West (next door to R.V.C.) at 8.00 p.m. Tuesday evening instead of Monday as previously announced.

There will be an address on "Palestine—Its Structure and Role in the War," a discussion, and a film on life in modern Palestine. Refreshments, Palestinian singing and dancing will follow. Admission fee of twenty-five cents will be charged. All friends and members of Avukah are invited by the executive.

Junior Prom to Turn Over Profits to Merchant Marine

Over Two Hundred Dollars To be Available for Fund

At a meeting of the Junior Prom Committee held last night, the financial report of the dance showed a profit of over two hundred dollars. A full report of the expenses incurred at the dance had not yet been received, but it is expected that the final figure will go far over this estimated amount.

It was unanimously agreed at the meeting to turn over the whole profits derived from the dance to the McGill War Council with a recommendation that the sum be turned over to the official Merchant Marine Fund. Last year the proceeds of the Junior Prom were turned over to the Buckshee Fund.

The Junior Prom was held last Friday in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium. Over nine hundred people were present at the dance which was the first campus formal to be held this year. Dancing started at 10.00 p.m. and continued to a little after 3.00 a.m. Blake Sewell and his Orchestra featuring Thelma Lane, vocalist, supplied the music.

This year the Junior Prom was identified with the war effort. Corsages were banned and instead flowers were sold at the dance. The proceeds from the sale of these flowers is included in the amount which is to be turned over to the McGill War Council.

A feature of this formal was the prevalence of uniforms representing the three armed forces of His Majesty. Permission of the University military authorities allowed students to attend the dance in their uniforms.

Conservatorium to Show Skit at Friday's Party

The McGill Conservatorium Club will hold their annual Christmas party this coming Friday, December 18, at 8.30, in the Conservatorium Hall.

The main feature of the evening will be a skit by Bill Stevens with incidental music by Violet Archer. The skit will be directed by the author and is the well-known "Greek Tragedy," which was given last year. The cast will be the same as last year's. Refreshments will be served towards the end of the evening.

The executive stated that all students and their friends are cordially invited.

Cosmos, BWI's Sponsor Party

Festivities To be In Grill Room Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow night at 8.15, the Cosmopolitan Club and the B.W.I. Society will hold their annual Christmas party in the Union Ball-room.

This party is designed primarily for members of the two associations, but the executive has announced that all students of the University may attend, although they will have to pay a higher admission fee, than if they belonged to either of the two clubs.

Naturally, the executive reports, decorations will be entirely compatible with the season, but will be somewhat unusual in that instead of being widely diversified, they are to be concentrated entirely in one corner of the room, centering around a Christmas tree, which will flourish under the guiding hand of Santa Claus. Those who intend to come to the party are reminded that it is obligatory for them to bring a present with them; this present is not to exceed 10c in value, and should be well wrapped up to hide its identity as all the gifts are to be assembled around the Christmas tree, and later to be distributed to the guests.

The main activity of the evening will be dancing, but in between periods of dancing there will be activities appropriate to the season, including carol singing. Refreshments will be served, and the price of admission will be 25c for members, and 40c for non-members.

This party is free of charge, and the decorations include a large "imitation mistletoe whose purpose is to be entirely passive," it was stated.

Ceremony to Be Held in Currie Gym

Red Cross Corps Will Inaugurate New Cadets

There will be a ceremony held in the Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium on Wednesday, January 13, at 8.30 p.m. in which recruits from the McGill detachment of the Canadian Red Cross Corps will become cadets.

To reach the rank of cadet, the recruits have studied an exacting course, in basic training, including courses in map-reading, A.R.P., the history of the Red Cross Corps, an elementary knowledge of K.R. and O., and military drill. Having completed this training, the recruits are eligible to become cadets. On becoming cadet, one enters one of the specialized departments of the Red Cross Corps for further instruction. Among the choices open are the Motor Transport, the Nursing Auxiliary, Office Administration and Food Administration.

Third Detachment Formed
The McGill Training Detachment of the Canadian Red Cross Corps was established in the autumn of 1941 and has increased its membership by over 40 cadets. Last year there were 79 cadets and this year there are 120 cadets and recruits, who are prospective cadets. Mrs. Tyrell is the commandant of the Corps, and Miss Adams is adjutant; both are from the Physical Education Department of R.V.C.

McGill was the third of the Canadian Universities to establish a

Electrical Club Holds Supper Meeting Tomorrow

The Electrical Club will hold a supper meeting tomorrow evening as a final pre-Christmas function. The special guest and speaker will be Mr. C. S. Fisher of the Northern Electric Company.

The supper meeting will take place at Scott's Restaurant on St. Catherine Street, west of Peel, at 5.45 p.m. The executive requests punctuality and hopes that all members of the club will be present, since this one of the most important meetings of the year. The price of the supper will be 50c per person.

A Letter to All Clubs and Societies

A copy of the following letter was sent to all clubs and societies on the campus. Any who have not received one and who fall in the category mentioned, are to consider this as a formal letter of request. It was emphasized that those clubs who received copies have not responded as well as they should. The importance of this letter should be carefully understood.

On October 29th, 1942, I received a letter of particular importance to all clubs and societies from the Principal, Dr. F. Cyril James. The following are extracts from that letter:

"Under specific new regulations passed by the Board of Governors last year, no individual or group of individuals has the right to use the name 'McGill' or any McGill building except with the approval of the Board of Governors. As I understand it, under the constitution of the Students' Society, the Board of Governors delegated to the Students' Executive Council broad responsibilities in regard to student self-government... included in this responsibility is the duty of approving and supervising all student societies which exist on the campus. In order to carry out this duty in an appropriate manner, the Students' Council should provide 'that all undergraduate societies, clubs or groups using the name of McGill or meeting in any McGill building, should be formally approved by the Council and the Council should at all times have on hand a complete list of such approved societies... and furnish such a list to the Principal from time to time for the inspection of the Board of Governors.'"

The Council has given this subject very considerable thought in order to carry out these new University regulations in accordance with Article 2 (titled "Object") of the constitution of the Students' Society which reads 'An association of undergraduates formed to

Meeting To be Held At R.V.C. Tonight; Decisions Effected

The recently-formed McGill Branch of the League of Nations Society will meet tonight at 8.00 p.m. in Room 2 of R.V.C., to hear Dr. William Stanford Reid discuss the Beveridge report in the light of recent European history.

The executive has announced that the decisions made at the first meeting of the Society two weeks ago have been carried out. The Society has been recognized by the Students' Council, and hence has the right to meet in campus buildings. Furthermore, the affiliation fee to the Ottawa head-office has been duly paid and received, and a large variety of literature has been received in return. It was also announced that a representative of the McGill Branch attended the dinner given on Tuesday evening in honor of Warwick Chipman, K.C., at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, by the Montreal Branch of the Society.

Dr. Reid was invited to speak on the topic of the Beveridge plan, a member of the executive reported, because it constitutes a "good departure for the future discussions which the Society hopes to integrate into a study of international relations, and how these are affected

I.V.C.F. will Sponsor Fireside this Saturday

The last in the series of Fireside discussions based on the theme, "Christianity is Christ," and sponsored by the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship will take place this Saturday at 8.00 p.m. in the Student House, 3445 Peel street.

E. White, Eng. 3, will lead the discussion which will deal with the subject, "The Meaning of Christ," following which an attempt will be made to correlate the results of the five previous discussions with an application of their meaning to present day Christians.

Carols Sung At Service On Sunday

Get-Togethers To be Held By SCM, IVCF

A University Christmas Chapel Service will be held in divinity hall at 7.30 p.m. on Sunday, December 20th. This event is sponsored jointly by the Student Christian Movement and the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. After the service the I.V.C.F. will hold a hymnsing in the reading room of the Union at 9 p.m. and the S.C.M. will hold a Christmas Open house at their house, 3574 University St.

The service will be a carol service. It will consist mainly of carol and hymn-singing, which will be led by the combined choirs of the I.V.C.F. and S.C.M.; there will be no speaker. Although the choir will lead the singing, the service will depend essentially on the congregation and the support they give it, a member of the committee stated. He went on to say that to this end a good attendance was essential, and that to make the attendance as general as possible students should bring their parents and friends to the service.

I.V.C.F. and S.C.M. Sponsor Gatherings

At the I.V.C.F. hymnsing in the reading room of the Union following the services, Mr. George Dugard, the Fellowship secretary for Quebec and Ottawa, will speak for a short period of time. Afterwards there will be singing of the old familiar Christmas hymns and carols.

The S.C.M. Open House will feature

Mock Parl't To be Held

Women's Union To Hold Debate Tomorrow

On Friday at 5.15 p.m. the Women's Debating Union intends to hold a mock parliament, the executive announces. This parliament will be the first one held by the Women's Debating Union for some time, so it is hoped that as many women students as possible will be able to attend. "whereby they will be able to learn much of parliamentary procedure."

The subject of the debate is to be "The Position of Women in Public Life." The executive stated that they expect such a topic to arouse the interest and enthusiasm of all coeds who feel that the emancipated position of modern women is "vital to the continuance of the country's intellectual, social, economic, and political vigour."

This mock parliament is modelled somewhat, continued the executive's spokesman, upon the Mock Parliament which is held yearly by and for the freshmen, after the Bovey Shield debates. This year the Women's Debating Union started a series of classes in public speaking at R.V.C. of which this mock parliament is to represent the first term's culmination.

This organization supplies help in material and morale to world Jewry. In Canada some of the main problems are concerned with the position of the internees and refugees.

Mr. Hayes' topic will be "Opportunities for Achieving Social Benefits in Post-War Canada," in which he will discuss the utilization of natural resources and manpower. Artsmen Determined to Show Mettle and Purpose at Smoker

By R.R.M.

Just like Little Miss Muffet, the Artsmen will sit on their tuffet drinking their Christmas Beer at their Smoker on Monday night. And, just like the spider, the Engineers are expected, or rather, expecting to frighten the Artsmen away. But they won't do it, the Artsmen just aren't going to let them.

In former years we have been passively invaded, we have appeased, we have extended cordial invitation to occupy, but we realize at last that 'you can't do Business with Plumbers'. We shall resist to the last drop of our beer and the last bubble of our cokes.

If the Engineers have the temerity to invade the Union Grillroom when the Smoker is going on, and try to ruin our serious discussion on the Artsmen's place in the War, we will show them that we are undaunted and undauntable. Lock, stock, barrel, and ramrod we will throw them out. So, let them all come!

For we mean business. The time has come when the position of the so-called apathetic Artsmen must be clarified and defined. Much to this end will be accomplished by the faculty-student meeting which will be held over the week-end. More, we expect, will be accomplished when the most maligned of all student groups gets together Monday night to discuss the relative value of their studies to the war effort.

How Do We Measure?

On most college campuses December 7 was celebrated this year as a day for solemn and thoughtful stock taking. As a yardstick against which student governments and war councils may measure their war activities, the National Student Federation of America has just released this check list:

- Does your college have a war council or comparable organization? If not, is the student government body taking steps to organize one?
- Does your campus war program provide for efficient handling of the following war activities:
 - War stamp and bond sales?
 - Salvage collection?
 - Student war relief drive?
 - Student Speakers Bureau (available to community as well as campus meetings?)
 - Campus protection (training of student air raid wardens, fire fighters, bomb squads, switchboard operators, elevator operators, fingerprinters, etc?)
 - Campus discussion program on war issues and post-war problems?
 - War workshops to take care of knitting, bandage rolling, preparation of surgical dressings, Christmas and utility tips for service men?
 - First aid instructions?
 - Student curriculum committee to study needed curriculum changes brought about by war?
 - Instruction in motor mechanics, home nursing, emergency skills, home repair, etc?
 - Vocational training especially directed to war jobs?
 - Student student sponsored scholarship fund for both men and women after the war?

Last Chance

Tomorrow the Daily will issue a special Christmas edition. The paper will be made up largely of features including short stories, poetry, plays, and articles. The deadline has been extended till tonight.

The material need not have a scientific Christmas interest but ought to measure up to respectable literary standards. A prize in the form of a five dollar war savings certificate will be awarded for the best creative effort.

Manuscripts must be type written on one side of the paper only and double spaced. Otherwise, they will not be printed, regardless of their literary merit.

Contributions will be welcomed, and should be addressed to the Feature Editor and conspicuously marked "Christmas Issue". They may be left at the Union Tuck Shop or downstairs in the Daily office.

13. Service to service men—entertainment for nearby Army camps, collection of books, magazines, etc?

14. Benefit functions and other activities to war?

15. War libraries—a collection of material for campus-wide use, for discussion groups, forums, etc?

(3) Does your council make the best use of all existing campus organizations, delegating important jobs to them?

This is an examination that all college student bodies should take. It is not a survey and is intended to see just how high we do measure.

An interesting feature of this survey is that if we fail, no one can do anything about it but ourselves.

BRADLEY'S DIALECTIC by Ralph Withington Church (George Allen & Unwin Ltd., pp. 188; 10s 6d net or $3.50).

This book will be of great interest to all serious students of modern philosophy. The type of student who would be interested in this book needs no introduction to R. W. Church, now of Cornell University and formerly of Balliol College, Oxford.

Space and the talents of the reviewer do not permit an extensive criticism of Dr. Church's latest work, the primary object of which is "to bring out in somewhat simple terms the essential character of Bradley's dialectic. To that end, criticism of the dialectic is, for the most part, confined to a chapter on some basic difficulties in it, in order that excursions in criticism may not unduly complicate exposition of the central doctrine."

"Bradley's Dialectic" is the work of an impartial scholar who knows his Bradley, carefully separates exposition from criticism, emphasizes the "neglected chapter" in "Appearance and Reality" (Chap. 3 on "Relation and Quality"), and makes some trenchant remarks concerning the interpretations of Bradley made by Broad and Ewing.

Two quotations from Church's book may appropriately be (The preface, p. 10).

"Something strangely like a creed of exclusive party loyalty seems to have infected students of philosophy in some quarters. The doctrinaire bigotry thus engendered is not the less deplorable because it professes to be intellectual. As a consequence of this single-minded devotion to non-Hegelian modes of philosophy, otherwise sensible men, who have avowedly steered clear of Hegel, take his name in vain with some abandon. These same men apparently sit down to read 'Appearance and Reality' upon the thoughtless assumption that its major doctrine could only have originated on either or both sides of Didcot Junction. The misunderstandings that result from such cavalier procedure have made Bradley, in these same quarters, a synonym for nonsense."

"Yet the dialectic that Bradley calls 'the relational way of thought' formulates a mentality—an almost hopelessly romantic way of imagination and evaluation—that is abroad today in force, and we badly need to take account of it."

Church deals near the end of the book with the question whether or not Bradley can answer Hume, and he comes to the conclusion that neither Bradley nor Hume is or could be a refutation of the other; the two philosophers are fundamentally opposed, they have no common ground: for Hume identity is absolute, for Bradley, relational. Is there any rational basis for accepting identity as absolute or as relational, or, in other words, is there any basis for affirming or denying the Law of Non-Contradiction? Church can find no valid reason either to sanction or to condemn the Law of Non-Contradiction; this law is so fundamental that nothing can be said for or against it, although it may be accepted or rejected. To attempt to say anything that is at all significant for or against the law is to beg the question by automatically committing oneself to its denial or to its affirmation. It is a propos of this discussion that Church says, (p. 184).

"And in some quarters it will be urged that in the matter before us the touchstone of rational decision is supplied by experience. . . . The appeal to experience, considered so hard-headed and sensible by its proponents whether they be Idealists, Positivists, Neo-Realists, Pragmatists, or members of other philosophical sects, is a hardy and widely variegated perennial. Men have been appealing to experience for a long time. In her name they have castigated their opponents; men no less sensible than themselves, perhaps, who then replied in the name of their experience. . . . Presumably it is fairly plain that to appeal to experience is to appeal to it as it is understood in one way or another. . . . The validity of the Law of Non-Contradiction could hardly be made out by any appeal to the conception of experience that is developed in the 'Phenomenology.' No more could the dialectic be justified by any one or more of the conceptions of experience which the relational way of thought denies. In short, either you adduce an empiricism that is in accord with logic, or that is in accord with the dialectic, as the case may be, and so beg the question; or else you adduce a contrary empiricism, and so perforce miss the point of your attempted justification."

"Any appeal to the given can only beg the question for the other fellow. For it will assume that what for you is given . . . is likewise given for someone else. . . ."

"It would seem that there is no rigorous means by which logic or Hegelian dialectic can justify—as distinguished from explain—itsself to the other fellow. Each student of philosophy can only ask himself about the relevance of the one or the other to what he himself finds for examination and elucidation. To do this is indeed to appeal to experience. But it is to appeal to his own experience as being his own, not as something that imposes a philosophical obligation on his fellow men."

"If a man finds in his experience any two respects that are strictly the same, then he finds something that is incompatible with the conclusion of the dialectic of relation and quality that identity implies qualitative difference. . .

"Protagonists of the relational way of imagination are constrained by doctrine to deny that any two experiences, whether perceptual, imaginative, or intellectual, are in any respect the same. This is to say that for these protagonists every experience, however comprehensive or merely tenuous, is quite unique. To be sure, they sometimes deal with this stark consequence by saying that every experience is in part unique. But then the parts that would not be unique or unmatched would be matched by something else. And this would fly in the face of the conclusion that identity implies qualitative difference. The doctrine of relational identity is categorical; it admits of no exceptions. That is why it can only be rejected by anyone in whose consciousness there are ever two or more experiences that are in any respect strictly the same."

If the reader of this review is in any doubt about his answer, he may re-read the review and think again. But if he is a metaphysician, and has studied "Appearance and Reality," he needs no recommendation from a reviewer to read Church on Bradley and to consider whether Church's reductio ad absurdum is valid.

Good Bye Uriah Heep

A steep cliff reaches out of the sea, like a warning finger. A plateau runs inland at the top of it. A man walks along the plateau. He is dressed in shabby clothes, he is muttering:

"For every soul there is a place high up in the sky, the soul stays down here."

Well, good bye, you have been a good friend to me, stay where you are, stay where you came from in the first place. Yes, you have been a good friend to me, up to a point. You have served me, and I have served you, that's friendship, isn't it? But there were too many things which attracted you, things to which I could not follow you. You could not be stabilized, you had to go on and on. . . . I did not want to do that.

Yes, I loved you, very much, sometimes perhaps too much. I wanted to do anything and everything for you, that is only human. I fed and clothed you, I was deeply concerned when you were ill. Yet I know I hurt you often, and I am sorry for that. You see, I fell down and bruised you, sometimes I even broke you, please forgive me, I did not want to do it. . . . It just happened. When I strayed from you, or you strayed from me, as it happened, when I was in the clouds, I was worried, and sick for the sight of you, but I was too proud to admit it. But I cannot do without you, I need you, and so I came back to you shyly, and slowly, because I did not want you to know too well that I needed you so badly. Often I wondered, whether it was not you, and not I who ran my life, yet again, I did not want to admit that, but I want you to realize, that you determined more of my courses than you know.

You will probably laugh at this, but well, we shall not be together very much longer, I shall liberate you."

The man is walking towards the edge of the cliff, the wind blowing in his baggy clothes. "But I cannot do without you, yet you strayed from me, through no fault of yours. . . . You could not help it, I know, and I can only blame myself, for not having paid more attention to you while I had the chance."

"And so, since you are now away from me . . . or nearly, and I know that it is too late, you will find another who will serve you, and whom you will serve. So we part."

The man is at the edge of the cliff. "Find yourself another, as I know you will, and forget about me, although I don't want you to, for I still love you, whether I like it or not. As long as you are here, I cannot but love you. But we have failed together, and the soul must go up on high, why? I don't know; I only know that it is so."

You were my greatest concern, but we can not go on in this manner. . . . perhaps in another, but not in this. . . . soul and body must be harmonious, and so, may God be with you, GOOD BYE!"

The man takes one step forward, and is over the edge of the cliff. . . . with a splash he lands in the water. . . .

REQUIESCAT

Beneath the dying fires of the dull red sun;
Under the blue-black sky, the thin cold wind
Blows dully o'er the shifting sands that cover

All that ever was upon this Earth.
This Earth that once was green and teemed
with life;

Warmed by a bright and friendly sun that shone
On wide seas, high mountains, and rich luxuriant lands.

This Earth that saw the slow ascent of Man,
His struggles, strifes; his works, his hopes, his dreams;

Buried by the shifting sands. . . .

YOUR CALLING, BIRD

Your calling, bird,
Through chill and frost,
Like the last bugle-call
Of a battle that's lost.

Through the half-bare wood
You despairingly call;
The leaves bid you answer
As whirling they fall;

Like soldiers in battle,
All wounded and red,
Staggering, falling
To earth their bed.

Flying and falling,

Letter Forum

In Defence Of The Prom.
The Editor, McGill Daily.

In your edition of Tuesday, December 15th, there appeared a letter headed "On Temperance," and signed "Moralist," describing by hearsay the behaviour of the students at the Junior Prom.

It appears to me that one of three things prompted its writing.

Firstly, genuine antipathy to any form of entertainment. If such is the case, I can only respect the scruples of the writer, although I personally do not agree with them.

Secondly, pique on the part of the lady in question that she was not invited—an event which needs no comment.

Thirdly, a "come on" to draw out a heated denial. If such is the case, then I am the "goat."

I feel, however, that whatever prompted its origin, some of the material which it contains is so scurrilous that some refutation is necessary. Such a slanderous diatribe on the student body as a whole, if allowed to go unchallenged, would create a very unfavourable and false impression in the mind of any reader. The "Daily" finds its way into the homes of many students, and as the parent of a past and I hope future student, I would be shocked to read such an account of my own children's activities.

I blame you, Mr. Editor, for allowing such a libelous account to appear in your columns, knowing as you do what a gross misrepresentation it is of the facts. If the account was written in good faith, you at least owe it to your fellow students to check the details before you published them. If the whole thing is a hoax, as I hope it is, then in my opinion you have, to put it mildly, been guilty of execrable taste.

My wife and I were honoured by the Committee of the Junior Prom by being asked to act as Patrons. I speak on behalf of and with the consent of the other Patrons in giving the lie to the allegations contained in the letter in question. We all enjoyed ourselves at the dance, and speaking for myself, I could not have hoped for a better organized or better behaved party, had it been held in my own house.

I trust you will be good enough to give this letter the same publicity as the one which called it forth.

Yours faithfully,

J. C. HOPE.

Ed. Note: Students will be grateful to Major Hope for this letter on the Prom. While the Daily is responsible for libelous material which appears therein, we cannot be held responsible for an individual interpretation of an event or series of events.

Letter Of Thanks

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,

Through the medium of the Daily, I wish to extend my thanks to all the women students who supported me in the recent elections. I hope that during my period of membership in the Red Wing Society, I may prove to be of some service to the student body. Thank you, again.

Phyllis Wood.

Dear Sir,

May I express, through your column, my thanks to those who nominated and elected me to the position of representative from Engineering to the Students Executive Council.

What Is The Trouble?

The Editor, McGill Daily,

Dear Sir:

I am sick and tired of reading all the various forms of dissension published in the "Letters to the Editor" for the last month.

What is the matter with the people at McGill? Don't they know that there is such a thing as CONSTRUCTIVE criticism? Heaven knows there is enough bitter feeling and fighting in the world today without college students insulting each other right and left.

Apart from that, all these petty arguments, although not on a nation-wide scale, show internal weaknesses. We can't agree with Hitler, but surely we can agree amongst ourselves, or at least keep quiet and calm. It seems as though some people would love to start rumours or precipitate a riot. Hitler would like nothing more than to separate us. Why help him? He didn't invent a fifth column for nothing.

It's all very democratic to scream one's opinions at the world at large through the medium of a free press, but let's remember that there is a war on to preserve civility and the right to THINK as we wish. We should respect that right. And incidentally, "respect" means to treat with dignity.

People who are privileged to continue their studies at universities are supposed to be of some use to their country. What a lot of useless energy has been used lately by certain pen-pushers.

How about ending this thriving business of slanderous letter-writing? In other words, let's forget about ourselves and our unimportant opinions, and think a little more about the boys who are fighting this war for us.

Looking forward to seeing a nice, polite, sensible, interesting letter in the Daily soon, I am

Hopefully,
SHEILA A. WARD.

Refutes Moralist

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:

I would like to take the privilege of expressing, through the medium of this column, my complete dissatisfaction with the letter concerning temperance at McGill, and in particular, the Junior Prom, which appeared in Tuesday's issue of The Daily.

It is almost intolerable to think that we have here at McGill a student with such a desperate and base mind as "Moralist." For any student to make such a statement would be sheer indecency, but for one who did not even attend the Prom, for one who had merely HEARD reports of the behaviour of the students at this function, the writing of such a rude, suggestive letter was entirely uncalled for, and the facts upon which it was based had no foundation whatsoever.

In her letter "Moralist" stated that nearly all the participants were in the advanced stages of intoxication. This is a complete unadulterated lie, and as proof I have the word of the other students who, as well as myself, were present at the Junior Prom and SAW the behaviour of the fellows and girls. It is true that a few may have been feeling a little happy, but this group was definitely in the minority. To my knowledge there were four such people who might be labelled intoxicated in the true sense of the word, and when we stop and think of the nine hundred present, McGill can be justly proud of such a record.

The letter then went on to say that these student "degenerates" did not constitute official material and should be sent to the front with no training at all. Apparently the writer has become so engrossed in her own argument that she has lost every iota of sanity she ever possessed. This statement is absolutely folly, and even those with a minimum of brains would label this act wholesale slaughter and against the beliefs of our democracy.

Finally, as to the statement made concerning our co-eds who attended the Prom. It would be a severe enough accusation for our McGill girls to be called dipsomaniacs and nymphomaniacs by anyone outside the college, but when one of our own students freely labels her fellow classmates with such base descriptions merely because she had heard some entirely unfounded reports, I think the students of McGill should demand an apology and explanation for such a letter.

Sincerely,

John P. Aird.

HOW NOW, SIRRAH? OH, ANYHOW

Oh, sometimes I sit around, and think, what would you do if you were up a dark alley and there was Caesar Borgia,

And he was coming torgia,
And brandished a poisoned poniard,
And looked at you like an angry fox looking at the plumpest rooster boniard?

Why, that certainly would be an adventure,

It would be much more exciting than writing a poem or selling a debenture,

But would you be fascinated?
Or just afraid of being assassinated?
Or suppose you went out dancing some place where you generally dance a lot,

And you jostled somebody accidentally and it turned out to be Sir Lancelot,

And he drew his sword,
Would you say Have at you! or would you say Oh Lord!

Or what if you were held up by a bandit,

And he told you to hand over your money, would you try to disarm him and turn him over to the police, or over would you just meekly hand it?

What would you do if you were in a luxurious cosmopolitan hotel surrounded by Europeans and Frenchmen,

And a beautiful woman came up to you and asked you to rescue her from some mysterious master mind and his sinister henchmen?

Would you chivalrously make her rescue your personal objective, Or would you refer her to the house detective?

Yes, and what if you were on trial for murdering somebody whom for the sake of argument we might call Kelly or O'Connor,

And you were innocent but were bound to be convicted unless you told the truth and the truth would tarnish a lady's honor,

Would you elect to die like a gentleman or live like a poltroon,

The trademark guarantees your satisfaction

McGill Meets Air Force in N.D.H.L. Tilt

Artillery versus Infantry This Afternoon

Tomorrow night in the first game at the Forum at 8.00 p.m. a powerful McGill aggregate will take the ice against the Air Force N.D.H.L. entry. The Redmen are out to repeat their first win of the season when they topped the Fliers by the score of 5-3. Bud Farmer is expected to pace the McGill attack, and if he repeats his performance of two weeks ago.

The members of the C.O.T.C. are requested to turn out in force to cheer their team on. They may go in uniform or not, but before wearing his uniform, a cadet must sign an attendance form at the orderly room. The band will be present.

TEAMS TIED

The second game of the evening will see the Army meet the Navy. As all teams are tied, these games will decide the league standing of all the teams, giving two a first place tie, and the remaining two the post of honor in the cellar.

At the Forum this afternoon, at 12.30, the Intercompany pucksters will hold their first game of the season, when Artillery versus Infantry. The first game of the schedule between Tanks and Marines was cancelled due to the Ice Capades, but it will be played off at some future date. Tomorrow at the same time, the Fliers will tangle with the Navy. If the turnout at these intramural games is not good, the league will continue on the McTavish rink.

W. Scott Stars In Fencing Meet In First Pool

FINALS TONIGHT

Macdonald to Send Fencers for Tonight's Matches

In the first part of the assault-at-arms held in the gym last night, W. Scott of E company took top honours in fencing, winning 6 bouts out of six in pool 1. P. Buck was the leader of the second pool, taking 5 out of six bouts. Tonight, the first three men in each of the pools will compete in a single round of bouts, while an entry from Macdonald College will hold a preliminary pool, and then play-off with the winners of the McGill pool.

The results of the second pool were very close, for the first two men each obtained 5 out of six wins. However, Buck was judged leader over Spiegel, on a basis of the number of hits scored against the contestant. Buck had only 11, while Spiegel had 16.

MAC STRONG

In the finals tonight, the following men will compete in the Red pool: W. Scott, B. Strachewicz, P. Fokschaner, P. Buck, E. Spiegel, W. Webb. The Macdonald entry is not at present available, but judging from past opposition from the Aggies, it will probably be a powerful aggregate.

Judging from the results of last night, Scott will probably be the main spark on the McGill side. The participants will score for their respective companies depending on their final standing.

The results of the pools follow in order of merit.

Pool 1: W. Scott, 6; B. Strachewicz, 5; P. Fokschaner, 3; L. Leznoff, G. Talvenhemo, E. Rennie, A. Esfakis.

Pool 2: P. Buck, 5; E. Spiegel, 5; W. Webb, 5; A. Jefferson, J. Kareta Smart, J. Yospovitch, W. Segal.

McGill Plays M.B.L. Game Against Pats

Vittori Leads Powerful Line-up Of Reds' Opponents

Tomorrow night at 8:00 the McGill entry in the Senior City League will play the Pats. The latter are said to have a powerful lineup including Vittori, who played for McGill last year. Rosentzweig and Evans of the C.O.T.C. will be moved up to the Senior City League team for this game. Their place on the C.O.T.C. team will be taken by Scobie and Williams.

In the game with Georgians McGill, without two of its star players, faced a team that had been playing together for three years and during that time developed a fine system of co-ordination which the Redmen found difficult in stopping. However, the team had not expected to lose this game, and they are waiting to play them again, but in the meantime they are out to make a good showing against the other teams in the league, starting with the Pats.

Although McGill's best stars have not shown up to their true form so far, Coach Van Wagner hopes that they will be much better now with a bad game out of their systems, and practices recently seem to be bearing out this idea. Ronnie Wilson in particular was not in top form, but was beginning to get the range towards the end of the game and is expected to lead the McGill attack on Friday.

In the other game this week, Sir George Williams will face the Air-men from St. Hubert, who lost out in a thrilling game to the Oilers in their last game. The Flyers gave the Oilers, the dark horse in the league, a good fight before bowing out by four points, and should make a creditable showing against the powerful Georgians, according to best-informed basketball circles.

The Novice wrestlers opened the preliminaries of the B.W. & F. meet last night with four evenly matched fights and some fine exhibitions of wrestling.

The first match in the 145 lb. class saw Jim Farquhar win over Carlos Calderon by a fall in 5 1/2 minutes. The wrestlers were well matched and neither man enjoyed a superiority.

CURRIE WINS MATCH.

In the second fight between the 145 pounders Dick Currie defeated Bruce Ramsey by a fall in 3 1/2 minutes. This match was probably the most evenly matched fight of the evening.

Ken Wake took two falls to win over Paul Beausejour in the third fight of the evening. Wake showed a definite edge throughout this fight.

The evening's wrestling ended with a bout between Benjamin and Brooks in the 165 lb. class. This fight went into overtime and Brooks finally won a close decision to win the tussle.

Tonight's final matches will be as follows:

Dick Currie vs. Ralph Gurdian. Jim Farquhar vs. Ken Wake. Jack Charters vs. Joe Sabbath. Brooks vs. "Red" Strong.

New League To Determine Championship

12 Intramural Basketball Teams Will Take Part

Yesterday afternoon there were three games played in the Intramural Basketball League. R.C.A.F.-2 defeated A.W.-1 in the first game by 44 to 26. The winners, however, used four R.C.A.F.-1 men, and thus lost by default. This defaulted game does not affect the R.C.A.F.-2 team, as they will not be at McGill after Christmas. Wackman with 16 points, and Follis with 12, led the way for the winning team. For the losers, Lesperance scored 10 points and Ford 8.

In the second contest, B Company took RCAF-1 into camp by a count of 14 to 13. McCammon, tallying 9 points, starred for B Company. The scoring leader for RCAF-1 was Koyle with 4 points.

An exciting third game wound up with Macdonald College on the long end of a 21 to 10 score against A.W.-3. The victors were led by Chapman with 7 points, Mackey with 6, and Previtt who also had 6. Hamovitch managed to garner 6 points for the A.W.-3 team.

There is only one more intramural game before the Christmas vacation; it will be played tomorrow between UATC-3 and UATC-1.

CHAMPION TO BE DECIDED

After Christmas, the best 12 intramural teams will play in another league to decide the champion. These are: B, D, E-1, E-2, F-2, A.W.-1, A.W.-2, A.W.-3, UATC-3, UATC-4, Unattached 1, and either A or Unattached 5. The last two named will play off to determine which will play in the new league. It is planned to divide the twelve teams into three sections. A fourth section will consist of a Macdonald College team, which will get a bye until the semi-finals. After the champion of this league has been decided, an all-star team will be picked.

Don Cambridge Wins Heavyweight Bout Over Salamen

The Novice boxers paired off in nine well matched preliminary bouts last night to display some of the best boxing seen on the campus this year.

The preliminary matches ranging all the way from the 125 lb. class to the heavyweights showed some smart boxing and show promise of some even better fights tonight when last night's winners pair off in the finals of each class.

John Reid of B Coy., B wing paired off with John Polls of A flight in the first match of the night. These 125 pounders went at it fast from the opening bell as Polls opened up strong and managed to get in some telling hay-makers early in the bout, which slowed Reid up quickly and finally sent him to the canvas for the count of four toward the end of the first round. The hitting power of Polls wore Reid out by the end of the first round and the bout was awarded to Polls by a technical K.O. in the second round.

The second fight, also in the 125 lb. class saw Don Hillman meet Eddie Lawland in one of the most evenly matched bouts of the evening. Hillman showed considerable speed and aggressiveness from the opening bell but Lawland took the edge to win a decision after the scheduled three rounds.

Bishop met Hendershott in the first 135 lb. bout of the evening and after showing a slight edge in the first round Bishop opened up the second round fast to break through Hendershott's defence for several telling blows. The third round opened with Hendershott still fighting back strong but Bishop kept his advantage of the previous round and landed the hardest blows and won a technical K.O. in the third round.

The second 135 lb. bout was between Grimaldi and Gale. Grimaldi carried a decisive edge throughout this bout and although Gale held up strong under Grimaldi's attack he was unable to come back with any offensive power and Grimaldi took the decision.

Les Darragh and Bruce McAusland opened the 145 lb. class with some of the heaviest boxing of the evening. Darragh opened up with a strong attack and although he left himself open on several occasions he carried the attack throughout the first round. The second round continued wide open with both hitting hard and often. The final round saw even harder blows as both men threw caution to the wind and entered into a slug-fest. Darragh showed signs of wearing McAusland down as the round closed and the decision went to Darragh.

The 165 lb. bout between Peter Dear of F Coy., B Wing, and Norm Halford, B Coy., B Wing, opened up cautiously with each man looking for an opening and the second round continued with neither man doing much damage. Halford broke through Dear's defence for several telling blows in the final round and took the final decision.

The heavyweight bout between Don Cambridge and Dave Salamen was Cambridge's fight from the opening bell as he continuously wore his opponent down with an unrelenting attack. Although Salamen was obviously tired in the final round, however, he continued to come back and landed several good blows but Cambridge's steady barrage was relentless and he took an easy decision.

Les Darragh went after Buzz Heath in the 165 lb. class and stead-

Artsmen Determined to Show Mettle

The subject of the Arts course in wartime has aroused a good deal of controversy in many University centres across the country. Varsity has met the question with a faculty-student council which discusses all questions which may arise with reference to the utility of various courses. McGill last year, had a committee composed of members of the staff which advised students on the sufficiency of their effort.

It is hoped that something along these lines will be accomplished when the Student Council representatives of each
